Advanced Barrier Free Web Design

Excerpts from a course that looked into Section 508 accessibility standards and the Web Accessibility Initiative's guidelines as its measure of accessibility. The course assumes that participants have a general understanding of accessibility. Advanced features like accessible tables, frames, media, captioning, Java applets and other popular sophisticated tools will be addressed.

The parts I thought would be of interest are the video/audio (or the text version transcripts of two interviews on the subject)

1. Doug Wakefield, author of the Section 508 guidelines

   Transcription of Interview

2. Judy Brewer from the Web Access Initiative
   Transcription of Interview with Judy Brewer